The Rosicrucian Egyptian Museum houses the largest collection of ancient Egyptian artifacts on display in Western North America, including objects from pre-dynastic times through Egypt’s early Islamic era, as well as Assyrian and Babylonian artifacts. A part of the museum’s exhibits are about burial practices and afterlife including the replica of a typical tomb, a mummy and sarcophagus.

Gaze into centuries past when Pharaohs ruled the world, building massive temples to the glory of the many deities whom they believed controlled their natural world. Planning for the afterlife was so significant in the Egyptian culture that they constructed other-worldly structures of stone so complicated modern engineers are still trying to explain how they did it!

Inside the museum, we’ll visit the Alchemy Exhibit, to see the seven stages of the Alchemical process, a meditation chamber and a full-size reproduction of an Alchemist’s workshop.

Take a stroll through the Peace Garden, authentic to the Eighteenth Dynasty of ancient Egypt [1549 – 1292 BC], based on gardens of the city of Akhenaton, now known as Amarna, full of medicinal plants and beautiful fragrant flowers.

A meditative walk around the Rosicrucian Labyrinth, surrounded by a new oak grove, based on the design of the Chartres Labyrinth which has inspired spiritual growth for at least 750 years.
